

Student Research Assistants and Research Interns Wanted!

You'd like to gain research experience? You'd like to know more about how we study human behavior and cognitive processes? You are motivated, reliable, conscientious, and a responsible team-player?

We are looking for Bachelor and Master-students of Psychology and related disciplines, curious to work with us on current projects as student research assistants or research interns.

As a student research assistant or research intern, you gain valuable insights into research in Cognitive Psychology. Depending on your interests and prior experience, you may actively contribute by

- recruiting research subjects
- preparing, running, and monitoring of experiments
- conducting literature research
- preparing and supporting data analysis
- supporting the programming of our studies
- preparing results for publication (formatting etc.)
- maintaining technical research support systems (IT)
- ...

Interested? We'd like to hear from you! Please send your application containing your

- motivation (e.g., Why would you like to become a research assistant/intern at the Department of Cognitive Psychology, Cognition, Action, and Sustainability? Which project\(s\) or research subjects interest(s) you in particular?)

- CV
- transcript of records (if applicable; naturally, you won't have this as a 1st semester student, don't worry!)
- potential starting date (research assistant) or internship timeframe to Julius Fenn <julius.fenn@psychologie.uni-freiburg.de>

Please note: By sending in your application, you agree that we store the information you sent (up to one year) and disseminate it within the Department of Cognitive Psychology to advisors/researchers potentially matching your interests.
